DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election without traverse of Group III in the reply filed on 11/25/08 is acknowledged.
2. The examiner greatly thanks the applicants for providing support for the claimed limitations.

Specification

3. Applicant is reminded of the proper content of an abstract of the disclosure.

A patent abstract is a concise statement of the technical disclosure of the patent and should include that which is new in the art to which the invention pertains. If the patent is of a basic nature, the entire technical disclosure may be new in the art, and the abstract should be directed to the entire disclosure. If the patent is in the nature of an improvement in an old apparatus, process, product, or composition, the abstract should include the technical disclosure of the improvement. In certain patents, particularly those for compounds and compositions, wherein the process for making and/or the use thereof are not obvious, the abstract should set forth a process for making and/or use thereof. If the new technical disclosure involves modifications or alternatives, the abstract should mention by way of example the preferred modification or alternative.

The abstract should not refer to purported merits or speculative applications of the invention and should not compare the invention with the prior art.

Where applicable, the abstract should include the following:

- (1) if a machine or apparatus, its organization and operation;
- (2) if an article, its method of making;
- (3) if a chemical compound, its identity and use;
- (4) if a mixture, its ingredients;
- (5) if a process, the steps.

Extensive mechanical and design details of apparatus should not be given.

4. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phrasology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

5. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

6. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

7. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(v) as being anticipated by B. H. Adler (US 3,330,518).

Adler discloses a rod-shaped central portion or rod (12) with two end portions (around holes), each with its first connecting portion (holes); two housings (14), each with its second connecting portion (bottom of 14 facing 12), which can be rigidly connected with the respective, first connecting portions (Fig. 2), and each housing (14) has a through-going passage (where screws are located), and two attachment pieces (bolts), each of which extends through its passage (Fig. 2), and has attachment lugs (nuts), which on use of the reaction rod can be attached to the chassis (intended use) and the wheel axle housing (intended use) respectively, where the distance between reference points of the respective attachment lugs establishes a functional length of the reaction rod, and where the rod and the housings are initially assembled without being permanently interconnected (the nuts are screwed lightly), and the attachment pieces are inserted in the respective housings (the bolts are inserted), said jig comprising a bottom (the bottom of 12) on which is mounted with an intermediate space a positioning device (intended use) for securing the respective attachment lugs, whereby the reference points are kept at a relative distance corresponding to the functional length, and the rod and the housings can be attached to each other while thus secured (Fig. 2).

NOTE: a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim.

Conclusion

8. Please provide reference numerals (either in parentheses next to the claimed limitation or in a table format with one column listing the claimed limitation and another column listing corresponding reference numerals in the remark section of the response to the Office Action) to all the claimed limitations as well as support in the disclosure for better clarity (optional).

Applicants are duly reminded that a full and proper response to this Office Action that includes any amendment to the claims and specification of the application as originally filed requires that the applicant point out the support for any amendment made to the disclosure, including the claims. See 37 CFR 1.111 and MPEP 2163.06.
